World Budget

(Radio Ministries)

What Is World Budget (Radio Ministries)?

World Budget (Radio Ministries) is a specialized financial offering within the Seventh-day Adventist Church dedicated to funding global media evangelism.

Its primary objective is to broadcast Christian programming, Bible study series, and faith-based content into regions where traditional, on-the-ground missionary work is legally restricted, culturally closed, or physically difficult to establish.

Contributions to this fund support the following critical areas:

- Operation, Expansion, and Technological Upgrading of international broadcast networks.
- Adventist World Radio (AWR) and related media entities.
- The development and distribution of digital and internet-based faith content.

How Your Offering Makes a Difference:

Because radio signals, internet broadcasts, and digital media can cross closed borders, penetrate restricted communities, and reach individuals in private spaces, financial gifts to these radio ministries function as a widespread tool for global outreach.

Ultimately, the offering sustains infrastructure that allows isolated, curious, or searching listeners worldwide to access spiritual resources, connect with local correspondence courses, and engage with the church's global mission.

"How, then, can they call on the one they have not believed in? And how can they believe in the one of whom they have not heard? And how can they hear without someone preaching to them?" – Romans 10:14
